The oldest Czech zoological garden play table football and other games offers a whole range of experiences in inside. There are also regular events organized here, for example the carnival known as Walpurgis Night, children's day, and even barbecues. The playground is accessible only during opening hours, and one has to pay an entry fee.

During the summer, the premises are open to the public, offering ample opportunities for children to let off steam. There is a sandbox, from time to time they can observe the horses, and there is a tarmac circuit that can be used to teach small children to ride a bike, in-line skates, or scooter. You can combine your visit with a walk along the cycling path leading here all the way from the city center, making a comfortable and safe journey.
